"Seeing Life, Love, and Conflict through the Eyes of Others" Hebrews 13:3

The most important tool in our communication toolbox is the ability to see life through the eyes of others. Psychologists call "perspective-taking" the most important skill a person can develop in learning to relate to others.

T 2/3 Tim Muehlhoff @ Calvary

When we choose to love each other, address conflict, forgive, strive for purity, and be content, we are worshiping God. To view our relationships as worship provides a powerful motivation to do the hard work of keeping relationships healthy.

"The Greatest Relational Skill--Forgiveness" Ephesians 4:31-32

C.S. Lewis once commented that forgiveness is a wonderful idea, until you actually have something to forgive. The ability to forgive is the single a powerful indicator of how healthy our relationships will be in the present and future (ie. marriage).

"Intimacy with God - Preparation for Marriage" Ephesians 5

Don't wait to get married to experience intimacy, Jesus didn't! Experience Jesus as Spouse.

F 2/6 Dr. Larry and Jayme Acosta @ Gym

Come hear this couple share about their journey as God blended two cultures as they became one in Him.

“Bitter or Better? Responding after Being Devastated” James 1:2-5
What do you do after your world comes crashing down around you? How does God want us to respond after we’ve been deeply hurt? Hear the story of a survivor who went through this in his own personal life and see why he chose to be "better" rather than "bitter."
